

Proposal

ARTISTIC VISION

As a starting point, I chose to explore and dig deep into the functionalities of jQuery and jQueryUI because as a graphic designer, discovering those two libraries opened many doors to animation and interactivity between elements together. I am an avid lover of music and how music can affect our moods. Therefore for project 2, I want to create a fake DJ portfolio featuring classic portfolio material such as a discography page, a biography and a dance party scene. The user will be able to navigate on DJ TERRIBLE (name still needs some refinement...) website and explore his questionable music production skills. The goal of this project is to explore the possibilities of both libraries by applying the theory into the fictional webpage.

As someone who has their own portfolio page, I was imagining a scenario about how an underground DJ would design their first portfolio and I was mainly inspired by personal portfolios found on Behance, SuperHi and SoundCloud. The goal is to project a fun DJ who has no idea what he is doing, and showcase his love for funky colors. My main inspiration is the Montreal-based radio show N10.AS website. Every element can be interacted with while holding on to a strong visual identity. This is the direction I hope to bring with my project 2.

PLANS

The website will be divided into three main sections: the discography page, the artist biography and the dance party secret page.

1. Discography

The discography page will feature 3 fictional albums from DJ TERRIBLE's library of work. The page will hold 3 CD covers draggable on the page, and the middle section will feature a space where the CD can be dropped into and a snippet of the song will play. The CD will spin when correctly placed into the targeted section and be removed when the user wants the music to stop. The discography section will use the draggable feature from jQuery UI.

2. Biography

I am SO excited to write the biography of DJ DJ TERRIBLE. The user will be able to interact with the text itself. When hovering over certain elements, they will change color and certain words will fly off the page.

3. Dance Party

This section is inspired by the Beach Party example on the CART263 Github page. This page will feature GIF's of animals dancing and they will be resizable elements. The background will be a solid color that will change every 5 seconds, simulating a club environment. Let's not forget, this page will feature song snippets from the infamous DJ TERRIBLE.

4. Surprise page

To make this page a bit more amusing, there will be a mysterious tiny diamond emoji on every page. Once the user clicks on the emoji, they will be prompted with ads to hire the terrible DJ TERRIBLE. I was thinking of removing the link to the homepage, making the user stuck on an abusive page with a dark UI design. Is it too evil for the user? We will see...

Overall, this will be a simple, but colorful website integrating music, web design and interactivity with JavaScript. Very excited to see where this will go!
